When you've been through it, try to translate the following into Chinese.

Write in characters where you can and/or in pinyin where you don't know the characters or don't have the time.

Patrick is American. He works in China. He is an overseas teacher. He doesn't know that China has a Teachers Festival. This year, on Teachers Day, his students said thank you. They also gave him a present. He very much likes his students.

Ok – it's not Shakespeare, but it will be your first proper translation, so good luck.
