Du Chinese

- <https://www.duchinese.net/lessons/515-sleeping-in-class>
- We went over the vocab and structures of ‘sleeping in class’. Note that, although the meaning of many verbs can be conveyed with one character, to make the meaning clear it is very common for the verb to be partnered up with a noun – a ‘thing’ – which are commonly found together and together more neatly match our idea of a ‘word’.
- So, although 睡 translates as ‘to sleep’, it is commonly put together with 觉 – literally ‘to sleep a sleep’.
- Other common examples of this are:
 - 说话 (speak speech) = to speak
 - 学习 (study practice) = to study
 - 教书 (teach book) = to teach
 - 读书 (read book) = to read
